

'In Common': Reflections from the LFA2023 Curation Panel

Binki Taylor, The Brixton Project (Transcript)

Binki: I'm Binki Taylor from the Brixton Project.

I'm really happy that we have a theme of 'In Common' this year. I think it's an extraordinary moment in time in the world, and we need to approach how we solve things and how we look at things. We have to acknowledge all the things that we might want to be different here, and doing that together through this theme and expressing it in lots of different ways.

We can look at the planet, we can look at people, we can look at our changing our sense of purpose. And I really want people to really explore that and challenge themselves. And also, look back at the roots of 'The Commons'.

I really want to see that interconnectedness, I think, from organisers. And with that, I hope that different narratives will emerge, and different ideas will come to the table.
