

'In Common': Reflections from the LFA2023 Curation Panel

Tara Gbolade, Gbolade Design Studio (Transcript)

---

Tara: 'In Common' for me, really given the context of our climate crisis, our fuel poverty crisis and the polarities we have in society, really looks at the opportunity for optimism and regenerative design or regenerative development at the moment.

In the programme I'm really excited to see ideas that are really optimistic, particularly given the context we're working with. I'm really excited to see any ideas around how we address the biggest challenges regarding people and our planet.

So really regenerative development. What do people, places and organisations need at the moment? What existing systems do we need to preserve and enhance? And really great ideas in terms of macro scale as well as really small scale ideas, of how we can make daily interventions to make the world a better place.

In the programme I'm really excited to see any ideas that radical. Radical in terms of generosity, regenerative development as well as optimism.